the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.2 million (Office for National Statistics 1999). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase to 6.5 million by 2011, and the number of people aged 75 and over to 4.5 million (Office for National Statistics 1999).

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop services to meet the needs of older people, and a number of initiatives have been launched in the UK to address this need. The Department of Health has launched the 'Ageing Well' initiative, which aims to improve the lives of older people by providing them with the services and support they need. The Department of Health has also launched the 'Ageing Well' campaign, which aims to raise awareness of the needs of older people and to encourage people to get involved in helping them.

The 'Ageing Well' initiative is a multi-agency effort, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, the Department of the Environment, and the Department of Transport. The initiative is aimed at improving the lives of older people in a number of ways, including by providing them with the services and support they need, by raising awareness of the needs of older people, and by encouraging people to get involved in helping them.

The 'Ageing Well' campaign is a multi-media campaign, involving television, radio, and print. The campaign is aimed at raising awareness of the needs of older people and at encouraging people to get involved in helping them. The campaign is also aimed at encouraging older people to get involved in helping others.

The 'Ageing Well' initiative and the 'Ageing Well' campaign are part of a wider effort to improve the lives of older people in the UK. The Department of Health is also working on a number of other initiatives to improve the lives of older people, including by providing them with the services and support they need, by raising awareness of the needs of older people, and by encouraging people to get involved in helping them.
