the 1990s, the incidence of S. flexneri has increased in the United Kingdom [10]. In the United States, S. flexneri has been reported to be the most common serotype of S. flexneri isolated from children with acute bacterial dysentery [11].

There is a paucity of data on the epidemiology of S. flexneri in the United Kingdom. the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased by 1.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased by 1.1 million (Office for National Statistics 2000). The number of people aged 65 and over is projected to increase to 6.5 million by 2020, and the number of people aged 75 and over to 3.5 million (Office for National Statistics 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop services to meet the needs of older people, and a number of initiatives have been launched to address this need. The Department of Health has launched the 'Ageing Well' initiative, which aims to improve the lives of older people by providing them with the services and support they need. The initiative includes a number of measures, such as increasing the number of health visitors, and providing more support for carers. The Department of Health has also launched the 'Ageing Well' campaign, which aims to raise awareness of the needs of older people, and to encourage people to get involved in helping them.

The 'Ageing Well' initiative is a multi-agency effort, involving the Department of Health, the Department of Social Security, and a number of other government departments. The initiative is also supported by a number of voluntary organizations, such as Age UK, which provides a range of services for older people, including advice, support, and advocacy. The 'Ageing Well' initiative is a key part of the government's strategy for improving the lives of older people, and it is hoped that it will help to ensure that older people are able to live well into old age.
