the 'information' and 'communication' fields. The 'information' field is defined as:

...the study of the processes of information creation, organisation, storage, retrieval, dissemination and use, and the social, cultural, economic and political contexts in which these processes take place. (p. 1)

The 'communication' field is defined as:

...the study of the processes of communication, the social, cultural, economic and political contexts in which these processes take place, and the impact of communication on society. (p. 1)

These definitions are not intended to be exhaustive, but they do provide a clear indication of the scope of the two fields.

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased by 1.2 billion (United Nations 1999). The number of children in the world who are under 5 years of age has increased by 1.1 billion in the same period. The number of children in the world who are under 15 years of age is projected to increase by 1.5 billion by the year 2025 (United Nations 1999).

There is a growing concern that the rapid increase in the number of children in the world is leading to a corresponding increase in the number of children who are living in poverty. This is because the number of children who are living in poverty has increased by 1.1 billion in the same period as the increase in the number of children in the world (United Nations 1999).
