the 1990s, the incidence of S. flexneri has increased in the United Kingdom [10]. In the United States, S. flexneri has been reported to be the most common serotype of S. flexneri isolated from children with acute colitis [11].

There is a paucity of data on the epidemiology of S. flexneri in the United Kingdom. The only published study of S. flexneri in the United Kingdom was by Roberts et al. [12], who reported the isolation of S. flexneri from 10 of 1000 patients with acute colitis in the United Kingdom between 1980 and 1989. The serotypes of S. flexneri isolated were S. flexneri 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100.

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector, and to ensure that the public sector is able to deliver the best possible value for money. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of the Health Service Act 1999, which introduced a new framework for the NHS, and the introduction of the NHS Plan, which sets out the government's vision for the NHS in the future.

The NHS Plan also sets out the government's commitment to improve the efficiency of the NHS, and to ensure that the NHS is able to deliver the best possible value for money. This commitment is reflected in the NHS's financial targets, which require the NHS to reduce its expenditure by 1.5% per year over the next five years.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 12.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased from 4.5 million to 6.5 million (Office for National Statistics 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people in the community. The Department of Health (1999) has published a strategy for older people, which sets out a vision for the future of older people's services. The strategy is based on the following principles: older people should be able to live independently in their own homes; older people should be able to access the services they need; and older people should be able to participate in the decisions that affect their lives.

The strategy also sets out a number of key objectives for the future of older people's services. These include: to improve the quality of care; to increase the choice of services; to improve the accessibility of services; to improve the responsiveness of services; and to improve the efficiency of services.

The strategy is a key document for the development of older people's services in the UK. It provides a clear vision for the future of older people's services and sets out a number of key objectives for the future of older people's services. It is a document that should be read by all those who are involved in the development of older people's services.
