[The following text is a dense, continuous block of text, likely a scan of a document page. It appears to be a mix of English and possibly some non-English characters, but the overall structure suggests a single paragraph or a series of lines of text. Due to the low resolution and potential noise in the scan, the specific words and punctuation are difficult to discern accurately. The text is organized into several lines, with some lines appearing to have indentation or bullet points, though the details are obscured.]

[The text continues in a similar fashion, consisting of multiple lines of dense, somewhat illegible characters. The layout suggests a formal document or a technical report, given the structured appearance of the lines.]

[The final portion of the text block concludes with several more lines of dense characters, maintaining the same level of illegibility as the rest of the page.]

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased by 1.2 billion, from 1.1 billion in 1980 to 2.3 billion in 1999. The number of people aged 15 years and over has increased by 1.1 billion, from 1.1 billion in 1980 to 2.2 billion in 1999.

There are a number of reasons why the world population is increasing so rapidly. One of the main reasons is that the number of children born to each woman has increased. In 1980, the average woman in the world had 2.5 children. In 1999, the average woman in the world had 2.7 children.

Another reason why the world population is increasing so rapidly is that the number of people who are surviving to old age has increased. In 1980, the average person in the world lived for 60 years. In 1999, the average person in the world lived for 65 years.

There is a growing awareness of the need to develop strategies to meet the needs of the ageing population. The Department of Health (1999) has identified the need to develop a 'new paradigm' for the care of the elderly, which is based on the principles of 'active ageing' and 'positive ageing'. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that ageing is a process, and that the needs of the elderly are not fixed, but change over time. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a homogeneous group, but a heterogeneous group, with different needs and interests.

The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a passive group, but an active group, who are able to contribute to society. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a burden on society, but a resource. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a problem, but a challenge. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a liability, but an asset.

The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be cared for, but a group to be supported. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be protected, but a group to be empowered. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be isolated, but a group to be integrated. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be segregated, but a group to be included.

The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be ignored, but a group to be listened to. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be silenced, but a group to be heard. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be dismissed, but a group to be respected. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be despised, but a group to be valued.

The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be feared, but a group to be loved. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be hated, but a group to be embraced. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be rejected, but a group to be accepted. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be excluded, but a group to be included.

The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be forgotten, but a group to be remembered. The 'new paradigm' is based on the idea that the elderly are not a group to be overlooked, but a group to be noticed.
